According to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC), everyone 6 months of age and older should get an influenza (flu) vaccine every season with rare exception. CDC's Advisory Committee on Immunization Practices has made this recommendation since the 2010-2011 influenza season.

Vaccination to prevent flu and its potentially serious complications is particularly important for people who are at higher risk of developing serious flu complications. In addition, each year hundreds of thousands of people in the United States are hospitalized from flu-related illness. Given the impact of COVID-19 (Coronavirus) on local health care systems, flu shots are especially important to protect critical health care capacity and resources.
